WOULD REGULATE BUILDING SPURS NEW COAL MINES

As Means of Checking Overdevelopment, Plan Mines Bureau Engineer.

IS VIEWED WITH FAVOR

George S Rice chief mining engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines, has submitted to the United States Coal Commission a plan for checking the overdevelopment of the coal mining industry which the Washington correspondent of the Coal Trade Journal states is regarded by some experts as the simplest and most promising suggestion of this kind yet offered

The plan provides that the Interstate Commerce Commission be given authority by Congress to regulate the laying of spurs from railroad lines into new mines with the implied instruction that no authority for new spurs be granted unless there is clearly public need for the coal in the mine proposed to be opened

Unless the owners of coal lands can get spurs from the railroad nearest to their property, they of course can not operate a mine for they can not move and sell the coal—except in the case of wagon mines

It is understood that the Bureau of Mines has given no formal indorsement to the plan, but it is known that officials of the bureau who have studied the overproduction problem and the legal and economic complications attending most suggestions or remedies believe that Engineer Rice's plan is the best in sight.

It has been calculated that if the available annual increases in the demand for coal continues and if the usual depletion of old mines continues the normal production of soft coal in the United States will be equal to the normal demand in five years unless new mines are opened. With a rule that no railroad spurs to new coal lands be allowed it is said that demand and production would be on an equality within that period or allowing for special cases in which spurs were granted with in a short time after the close of the five-year period No one hopes that the evil could be remedied in less time than that.

There is agreement that it must be remedied The miners have said that overproduction is at the root of most of the troubles, the operators have said so, Secretary Hoover said so repeatedly when he was dealing with he last strike, and in the preliminary report made public recently by the United States Coal Commission the evil of overproduction received more attention than anything else

The only owner of coal lands who would suffer would be the owner of lands not opened for mining operations. That suffering it is further argued, would be more apparent than real. The owner would not be able to rush the opening of a mine in periods of shortage when big profits were to be had But he would have he long-run advantage of a normal market and a normal industry when he time came at which he could fairly be allowed to have a spur and hus actually to put his mine in operation.

As to escaping legal difficulties it s contended that the Rice plan would not be in a legal sense regulation of the right of an owner of coal lands o open mines It would be the advocates of the plan argue regulation of transportation facilities and merely an extension of the powers now exercised over transportation by the Interstate Commerce Commission That commission it is held simply would decide whether railroad facilities should be extended to a given coal property not whether that coal property should be opened as a mine Moreover it is held that in the exercise of its power it is not to be supposed that the commission would permit no new spurs for five years or more Special circumstances would seem in some cases

STEEL TONNAGE IS A TRIFLE HEAVIER NOW THAN IN DECEMBER

Ingot Production at About 10,000,000 Tons Year Rate; Buying Movement Tapering Off, Orders Plenty

NEW YORK Jan 31 The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows

Steel mills are running a trifle more smoothly and the tonnage is in consequence a trifle heavier than in December All producers have been making an effort to operate in full but normal capacity of plant facilities cannot be utilized on account of labor and transportation conditions The only important resumptions in the past two months have been of the Riverside pipe mill and the Bellaire billet and sheet bar mill both in the Wheeling district and both being Bessemer propositions

Steel ingot production is running somewhat above the 40 000 000 ton rate which prevailed quite uniformly during the last three months of the old year The heavy shipments of steel in the past four months has produced no appearance of consumers being satisfied or of being willing to accept lighter shipments in future Evidently there were pressing requirements banked up at the end of September when the steel industry recovered from the effects of the coal strike

The remarkable buying movement in finished steel products that developed early in December above the ordinary running demand of previous months is now tapering off in point of tonnage The mills are left with well filled order books and with very firm ideas as to prices Merchant bars are now quotable at 2.40c as the general market following the recent advance exhibited by shapes and plates to this same level Concessions are of course no impossible in special cases Welded steel boiler tubes are up three points but no change is seen in merchant steel pipe or oil country goods although the market in those lines is strong and active

With comfortably filled order books the steel mills have now acquired a momentum that will probably carry them to midsummer with a production as heavy as labor and transportation conditions will permit. The highest operating rate of the half year will possibly fall in March almost always a particularly good month for tonnage outputs

West Va. Can Supply U. S. With Coal for More Than 250 Years

A recent survey of the coal of West Virginia states that there are about 55 different seams of bituminous coal in the state and 40 of the 55 counties of the State are underlaid with some of these coals which are of sufficient thickness and purity to be of commercial value

There are at present 29 different seams mined in a commercial way in the 1,670 mines in operation in the State and probably 50 seams of commercial thickness that could be mined The thinner beds will be of value later when the thicker seams shall have been exhausted

The available coal area in West Virginia has been variously estimated by different geologists to be 9,500 square miles or 6,080,000 acres On the assumption that each acre carries 10,000 tons of coal then there will be 60,080,000,000 tons of available coal in the State which is merchantable To this should be added 100,000,000,000 tons of low grade coal that at present is not salable owing to the thinness of the beds and the cost of eliminating the impurities but at a later date this coal will become valuable

The total production of coal from the mines in West Virginia from 1863 to June 30 1922 about 6 0 000 000 tons or less than one per cent of the total available coal in the state If the total consumption of coal in the United States is 600,000,000 tons per year then West Virginia could furnish coal for the entire United States for more than 250 years

New Mexico Wonder

One of the natural wonders of New Mexico is the Alamogordo or Tularosa desert It is a sandy plain measuring from 100 to 175 miles from north to south and from 35 to 50 miles from east to west and it represents in the opinion of many authorities, the upper surface of a gigantic block of the earth's crust that sank after the deposition of the cretaceous strata It is surrounded by an elevated border and on the east especially, the cliffs rise sheer to a height of 1,000 feet The curious Organ mountains are on its southern border Within the plain where floors of inundance swelled up are vast deposits of gypsum which forms as white as snow which the wind drives into vast drifts The vegetation is peculiar and highly interesting to botanists

Neglected Resources

Hindu sages held that no one using his child's resources need be bereft of happiness

Poet Moody said that the adventures of the mind when all compare more enthralling than the adventures of the senses

Conrad Marlow was always chasing some notion or other round and round his head just for the fun of the thing"

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal This was the inception of and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

NOT TOO COMFORTABLE TO BE CHARITABLE.

Seeking to arouse us to a realization of the sad plight of the people in the stricken areas of the Near East Mrs Emrich, in her address before the Kiwanis Club on Wednesday, said:

"I fear that you here in America are endangered by being too safe, too well housed too well fed, binding you to the knowledge of what womanhood and childhood are suffering elsewhere throughout the world"

That is, is a sad truth none will deny. Being so accustomed to having even more than we need to promote bodily comfort, we cannot bring ourselves to understand what it means for any people to be without even the barest necessities Such is the condition of untold thousands in the lands so ravished by the inhuman Turk in his mad purpose of annihilating the "Christian dogs," whose only offense was been to ask to be allowed to live in peace in the land which is their rightful inheritance.

We have not failed to respond to the appeal for relief which have come from many quarters and we have given freely of money, clothing and food But we all too soon forget that one disaster following another has overwhelmed the unfortunate people who have been the object of the malevolent hatred of the Turk, and that their condition today is pitiable beyond the power of any one to describe except those who, like Mrs Emrich, have been brought in personal contact with the suffering

We cannot, of course get the same point of view at this distance removed from the harrowing scenes in the Near East but if we ponder seriously the great truth of Mrs. Emrich's message we ought to be able to bring ourselves to an appreciation of the fact that we are, indeed our brother's keeper, not alone in our own community, but everywhere in the world whence the cry of distress comes

Because of the happy and fortunate circumstances under which we live, almost without thought of whereof with to be clothed and fed, obligations are imposed upon us which we cannot escape if we are to free ourselves of the charge, that we are blinded "to the knowledge of what womanhood and childhood are suffering elsewhere throughout the world"

We must prove anew to the world that we are not too comfortable to be so be charitable

NOT TOO BIG TO PUT ACROSS.

That the need for a general hospital in Connellsville is recognized by persons who are not residents of the immediate community, and who, like James S Braddock of Mount Pleasant, have had experience in the conduct of hospitals, should convince any doubter that no wiser step could have been taken than to plan for giving systematic direction and control to the movement for an enlargement and improvement of the present hospital's facilities

There being so general agreement that it is the duty of the citizens of Connellsville and the territory tributary thereto to make the necessary provisions for supplying our hospital needs, carrying the decision of the people into effect is the task to which we must now address ourselves. When the organization and incorporation of the hospital association is completed we will then be ready to go ahead in a business-like manner. Meantime the people should begin to give thought to preparing themselves for taking a substantial part in the undertaking, as all will doubtless be glad to do, as well also to serve in any capacity for which they may be selected to aid in giving the movement the momentum necessary to carry it to success.

This is one of the biggest things Connellsville has undertaken since the early days of the World War, but not too big to be put across if we display the same will to win with which we did even bigger things when we were standing behind the boys who stood in the front lines on the battlefields of France

Life on the Farm

Harrisburg Telegraph

The farm boys and girls who were in Harrisburg last week might have passed for a group of university students out for a holiday The artists who like to depict the farmer as poorly dressed and uncouth of manners ought to have been here to get a true conception of the high quality of the young manhood and womanhood of the farms of Pennsylvania. They were as fine and upstanding a group of boys and girls as it has ever been the pleasure of Harrisburg to entertain, and their coming serves very well to illustrate the change for the better that has come in life on the farm in the last generation

Time was when the farm was an isolated place, far from good schools and good books cut off by bad roads from town, devoid of entertainment, lacking in opportunity for social diversion and monotonous in the extreme

But in the past 25 years have come the automobile with its attendant good roads the vocational school with its community interests and clevening associations, the telephone, the electric light, the talking machine, the power pump, the radio—even the moving picture, and the boy on the farm has nearly all the advantages of the city plus many the city does not and cannot have

The farm is no longer a lonely place Distance has been annihilated by the permanent highway and the speedy flivver, by the telephone and the wireless and the new type school has made it possible for the boy and girl to keep pace with the best thought of the world and to prepare for their work of making the farm of to-morrow far more pleasant and profitable than that of the present

The day is past when the city boy or girl can poke fun at the country cousin Locking them over you can't tell the two apart, save that ordinarily the farm boy has a better physique and the country girl a better complexion

Chicago Black Diamond.

The Herrin verdicts are in. The result was anticipated This community is thus more firmly established in its position as alien soil.

The witnesses testified to the identity of the defendants in certain acts in connection with the murder of over a score of men One was placed as haranguing the mob to the effect that the only way to cure the trouble of the district was to annihilate the breed of scabs Another was pictured shooting into the helpless body of a man who was clad to a tree. Others were seen knifing or kicking fallen victims and threatening away those who would have given succor

And when it was all over the jury handed in its verdict—"We, the jury, find the defendants not guilty as charged in the indictment."

We have long wondered why, in all her sculptured and pictured representations Justice is always shown as blind Now we know.

BUD'S QUESTION.

I know how dirt gets on my hands,
I know how it gets on my face,
I know every day that wherever I play
There is always some dirt in the place.
I know how it gets on my knees,
For they gather it up by the peck,
I know how the dirt gets all over my shirt,
But how does it get on my neck?

They're at me to wash all the time.
There's nothing on earth I can do
But they say: "If you please, will you look at those knees
And look at the face of him, too?"
I know how I gather it up,
I know that I catch every speck,
I know how dirt comes to my fingers and thumbs,
But how does it get on my neck?

I don't use my neck when I play
I don't hit my neck when I fall
My neck doesn't touch dirty articles much
And it should be the cleanest of all
I know how my shirt waist gets black,
I know how my stockings I wreck,
I know how dirt lands on my face and my hands
But how does it get on my neck?

THE FLAG.

Emblem of all that makes life worth while,
Freedom, security and sheltered homes
The mother happy in her baby's smile,
Bright window panes and temple spires and domes

The school door open to the feet of all
Books and sweet music and the realms of art
Strong hands to help the weaker who may fall,
Fame for the genius whatsoe'er his start

My chance that was—my boy that is to be,
All this is shielded in her starry folds
All this and more in fancy I can see—
This is our flag, and this is what it holds

Who Said "Prunes"?
Special This Week Only

Just received a large carload Fancy Del Monte 40/50 Prunes. These prunes were grown in the famous Santa Clara Valley of California, a section noted for its production of the very best prunes. This valley, being near the coast and entirely surrounded by mountain ranges, has a more uniform temperature than other sections, which is more favorable for growing and curing prunes than anywhere else.

These prunes were carefully selected at a stage when the sugar content was fully developed, were slowly sun-dried, being protected from dust during the process, and then packed.

Special Prices for This Week Only:
Del Monte 40/50 Prunes, lb. - - - - 18c
Del Monte 40/50 Prunes, 10 lbs. - $1.75
Del Monte 40/50 Prunes, 25 lb. box $4.20

Prunes vary in size from 20/30s to 110/120s—the higher the number the smaller the prune. The more common sizes are 50/60s and 60/70s. Del Monte 40/50s must not be confused with the small, cheap prunes of inferior flavor so often advertised.

GREEK TYPE OF DRESS IN FAVOR

Simple Straight Lines Continue to Be Dear to the Heart of the Woman.

LIKE WHITE EVENING GOWNS

Snowy Frock Is in Limelight for Formal Wear; Stands Out as Distinguished Number Among the Brilliant Materials.

The story of present-day clothes is an interesting one, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. There are chapters on Egyptian, Persian and Venetian influences; in fact, almost unending are the themes that one might pursue in telling of clothes as created by the world's best designers of today.

But it is not in these radical departures that the interest of the well-dressed woman lies. It is not among any of these that the accepted line is to be found. No greater tribute could be paid to the taste of the average woman of the present day than that she still prefers the silhouette of the simple straight dress which so closely resembles the dress worn by the ancient Greeks at the period of their highest civilization.

The chemise dress of this season with its longer skirt and its shorter waist—which make its proportions more graceful—more strongly resembles the old-time Greek robe than did the strangely long-waisted, short-skirted frock of last year.

The white frock made along simple lines still is seen everywhere. It stands out as a distinguished type of dress among the brilliant stuffs that fashion so many of the mid-winter evening gowns.

Civet Cat Dyed in Rusty Hue.

Especially noteworthy among these gorgeous fabrics are exquisite metal encrusted velvets, chiffon and silks and the lovely, rich colored tissues such as those in gold and copper shades, as well as those in bright greens and yellows, which Chenult encrusts with embroideries in many beautiful contrasting hues.

Colors of the autumn are apparently great favorites with Chenult, who even dyes furs, such as civet cat, in an orange shade. The orange dye gives a rusty tinge to the black hairs of the fur, while the white ones take a brilliant orange hue so that the effect is very striking. Fur treated in this way is used to make entire evening cloaks.

Fur coats for evening wear and for the daytime, too, are now being designed for each customer rather than ordered from a model all ends made up or bought ready-to-wear. This seems a great extravagance, but such a method of procedure is no more startling in comparison to the buying of more staple styles in ready-to-wear fur coats than the method of draping furs which came into vogue a few years ago was as compared to the conservative lines followed by the old time furrier in making a fur coat a purely useful garment. Nevertheless, the general trend is to wear fur in exactly the same way but one would use velvet, silk or even chiffon.

Evening Clothes Are Rich.

Furriers of the day's hour still do not approve entirely of treating skins as fabrics. No braiding of dress manufacturers as shown greater adornment during the last three or four years than has the fur industry. Here the most radical departures from the beaten track are seen, not only in the forming of the garments but in the working of the skins themselves.

In the use of broadtail this is especially true. Only a few seasons ago this fur was worked in patches just the size of the skin, so that the whole effect was smooth and velvety. Now the skins are worked in every conceivable way, even in shell patterns.

Colors that remind one of sunsets on frosty winter evenings are seen in a dancing frock of silver cloth shot with red. This gown is made in simple straight-line effect. The skirt wraps around the figure and is cut in deep points. There is a side panel of sheer silver tissue which is a continuation of the girdle. The girdle is held at the right side, at the point from which the panel falls, by a silver flower.

No more delightful frock for a party could possibly be imagined than one of Theater Gown of Heavy Gold and Silver Lace Over Foundation of Red Crepe de Chine. With It Is Carried a Red Fan. Has Gold Medallion.

all-over gold and silver lace cut in chemise style and hung over a foundation of flame red crepe de chine.

Gown Designed for French Stage.

A gown developed in a deep coral pink chiffon velvet is trimmed with an applique of silver braid forming wheels on the hem of the skirt and panel bands at the front and back.

Headdresses are increasing in favor steadily. So many ideas are expressed in the detail of the evening dress that surely no woman, young or old, can fail to find a type becoming to her.

Wide, straight bands of silk, ribbon or metal tissue are wrapped about the head. A rather extreme example of this vogue is a band tied at one side and long ends are allowed to fall over the shoulder. A more conservative method is to drape the band so that the fastening is concealed.

Jeweled tassels and strings of beads are hung from headdresses. Occasionally the hair is dressed high and a cluster of curls permitted to fall over the headband.

Juliet's cap is copied in silver and studded with jewels to make a modern headdress. Then there is the Egyptian-draped toque with tassel pendants and the braided band of tinsel cloth with crystal pendants.

Chemises of Latest Design.

The newer chemises are as straight up and down in design as any dress. Sometimes they have simply a narrow band of lace to edge them at the top, and then they are fastened over the shoulders with a narrow strip of ribbon to brighten the effect and keep the garment dainty looking. But, from this point, they can be elaborated almost indefinitely. The lace can be worked into a little yoke, it can be made up of insertion and edging prettily stitched together, or there can be ribbons strung through the garment in various ways. Also there are many rows of hemstitching applied to the up-and-down and the crosswise lines of the chemises, made of material that will allow of this sort of work.

But always the cut of the thing is kept nearly straight, depending upon whether or not you decide to have the step-in variety of chemise or the one that hangs loose and is worn with a pair of bloomers.

On some of the chemises they are using the most amusing little designs of faintly colored organdies cut in slender little patterns and appliqued to the white background.

Showing the Winsome Frock of Silver and Mauve Metal Cloth With Clover Girdle of Silver Tissue; It Is Charming for Formal Wear.

THE CROSS PATCH IN COLORS

Knitted Fabric Is Now Being Shown in Twenty Winsome Two-Toned Effects.

Cross patch, the knitted fabric that was introduced in solid colors only last year is shown this year in twenty different two-toned effects. Its possibilities as a cape or skirt medium for outdoor wear are more tempting than ever.

In the same breath, velvet deserves mention. Chiffon velvet, with its soft, luscious lines so beautifully adaptable to the draped silhouette now so completely in favor, appears everywhere. Seven out of ten of the costumes worn in one of the most fashionably costumed plays of the season were developed in chiffon velvet.

Luster Lace.

French luster lace is being exploited. It is made of pure silk somewhat heavier in weight than Spanish lace. The designs are very bold and cubistic and a high lacquered effect is achieved.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A Little Cup of Custard.

Children who tire of eating eggs as "just eggs" often like them if they are fixed up in a new form. Take the child's favorite cup, butter it, and break into it an egg, add two teaspoons of sugar, and beat well. Add a pinch of salt and one of nutmeg, fill up the cup with rich sweet milk, set it in a pan of boiling water, and put in the oven until the custard is set.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS

"California Fig Syrup" is Child's Best Laxative

When it cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." A teaspoonful never fails to clean the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the souring food and nasty bile out of the stomach and bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! THE MILLINERY FOR SPRING

Half Cloths and Straw Allovers Among First Fabrics Making Appearance.

Half cloths and straw allovers are among the first fabrics to make their appearance for the early spring millinery season, and these are being shown in the dark colors for the most part, made up into tailored types, while the southern lines show the brilliant colors in tulle and taffeta.

There are new combinations and weaves appearing in these straw cloths, and one of the latest is the Persian haircloth that carries the reds and greens and touches of tinsel thread through it, but through which the black predominates. Then there are sheve haircloths that are very good looking, used almost entirely for draped toques or rolls on brown or brim.

Labor is beginning to master the lesson of the collective power of money. Railroad presidents, steel kings, mine and mill owners will respect that power. It talks a language they understand. A labor leader with a just grievance is one thing, and a labor leader with a just grievance having sanity, reasonableness, financial ability and backed by great resources is another. With labor able to finance itself there will be less grinding of the faces of the poor by medieval-minded employers.

It will work in a thousand ways for industrial betterment. As, and if this movement extends it will go far toward quieting the industrial whirlpool. With every bank that labor establishes, every savings account opened therein, every building erected for labor and every bond labor buys, labor will become saner, more conservative, more just in its viewpoints and in a better position to get from industry what it is entitled to get.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"SLIM SHOULDERS," starring Irene Castle opened today for a three-day attraction. The story of "Slim Shoulders" introduces Mrs. Castle in a series of whirlwind events. She dances, rides, swims and wears a number of stunning wraps that will no doubt be the envy of every woman in town. The action of the story takes place in New York City and in picturesque Palm Beach. It is a modern story, written by Charles K. Harris and is said to provide her with some of the best opportunities of her career.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"YOUTH MUST HAVE LOVE" the leading picture today at this theatre presents Shirley Mason in the stellar role. Among the many thrilling incidents in the play are the robbery of the miser by his nephew, who causes his death while attempting to escape, the accusing finger pointed toward Earl Stannard, his daring escape from a pursuing posse, how a girl bringing him food each day is the cause of his hiding place being revealed, his unjust arrest for the crime and his escape from prison, the elopement of the youth and the girl with a posse following close behind, their capture when their automobile is wrecked and their subsequent vindication when the real criminal is revealed.

Friday and Saturday "Calvert Valley" will be shown.

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE YOUNG RAJAH" showing today at this theatre, Rodolph Valentino, the celebrated Paramount star, in one of the best roles in his career. Three other notable features make this picture one of the attractions in which Mr. Valentino has yet appeared under Paramount auspices. The story is the famous novel "Amos Judd" by J. A. Mitchell, which proved one of the most successful American works of fiction. It was adapted to the screen by June Mathis, the adaptor of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "Blood and Sand" and other Valentino pictures. The cast is unusually large and includes many prominent and popular players, including Wanda Hawley, Bertram Grassby, Charles Ogle and others.

Friday and Saturday Betty Compson will appear in "The Bonded Woman."

Home and Porch Dresses

Tomorrow, Friday and Saturday

An Eagerly Awaited Annual Event That Sounds the First Note of Spring

This annual Spring showing and Sale of Barmon Dresses has become one of the most important events of the year and women have accustomed themselves to look forward to this Sale as the ideal time to purchase their Spring supply of Washable Frocks for home and porch wear.

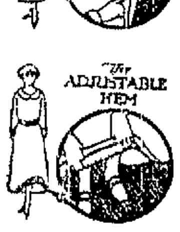

This season the styles are charming beyond description. The colors radiate and sparkle with the brilliancy of Spring buds and blossoms and will win the admiration of all women who seek Frocks of rare lovliness and extraordinary economy.

Be Sure to See the Feature Demonstration

Barmon Dresses have Four Famous Features which will be demonstrated at our Store during the course of this Sale. Every woman who is interested in dresses of better fit, greater comfort and longer service should see this demonstration.

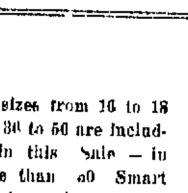

By buttoning two tabs concealed beneath a smart panel at the back of the dress the size of the garment can be so altered to perfectly fit any and all types of figures.

Under Arm Shields are tailored into these Dresses and provide practically double service at these points which all women know are first to wear out on ordinary dresses.

If it becomes necessary to lengthen the skirt due to full figures or shrinkage you need only pull a thread which releases a two inch concealed tuck. No restitching necessary.

Every Barmon Dress is provided with two Menders of Dress Material which are fastened to the inner part of the garment. Torn or worn places are quickly and neatly repaired with these Menders.

The Most Difficult Figures Are Perfectly Fitted

All women of large, full-fashioned or unusual proportions, who have always experienced difficulty in being properly fitted—can be perfected fitted—with Barmon Dresses due to a patented Size-Adjustment which is an exclusive Barmon feature—and which accomplishes this perfection of fit with slenderizing, complimentary effect.

The Moderate Costs Will Amaze and Delight You

It is difficult to understand how such finely made garments—fashioned from the best of Percales, Madras, Chambrays and Ginghams—beautifully trimmed and decorated, can be offered at such trifling costs—and you will quickly follow the example of other women who buy their full Spring supply while this sale is in progress.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

GOLD LURED MANY TO DEATH

Path to California in the "Days of '49" Literally Strewn With Bones of Unfortunates.

"The days of oil, the days of gold, the days of '49," marked the most picturesque gold rush in history. On the heels of Marshall's discovery, following Sutter's land, excitement became intense and gold in California was the ruling topic everywhere. By January, 1849, 90 vessels carrying 8,000 passengers sailed from various ports for San Francisco and 70 more were ready. During the year 540 vessels entered port carrying 35,000 passengers and 42,000 immigrants arrived overland.

In a few months the population of San Francisco climbed from 2,000 to 14,000 and that year the first Pacific mail steamer passed through the Golden gate. Four hundred sailing vessels were abandoned in the harbor while their owners and crews joined in the mad rush to the gold fields. Labor jumped to $10 a day and was scarce at that figure.

Between the spring of that year and the autumn of 1850, it is estimated that about a million people—men, women and children—left the Eastern states bound for the new Eldorado. But of this vast army thousands died of hunger and thirst amid the burning alkali deserts of New Mexico and Arizona, thousands more lost their way and perished miserably in the gloomy canyons and intricate fastnesses of the Rocky mountains, multitudes fell victims to the tomahawk and scalping knife of the Apaches, the raids of the Sioux and the opposition of the Mormon elders, who, resenting the intrusion of the gold seekers, sought to stem the tide by force.

Control Your Appetite

This is from "Les Miserables," by Victor Hugo.

"'My friends,' Thelonyes shouted, with the accent of a man who is recapturing his empire, 'gluttony chastises the glutton. Indigestion was sent into the world to read a lecture to our stomachs; and, bear this in mind, each of our passions, even love, has a stomachache which must not be filled too full. In all things, we must write betimes the word finis, we must restrain ourselves when it becomes urgent, put a bolt on our appetites, lock up our fancy, and place ourselves under arrest. The wise man is he who knows how, at a given moment, to arrest himself.'"

A Friendly Word.

Jasper—I haven't a good word for that feller Jim.

Porter—Well, they ain't much good said about him. But I'll say one good thing about Jim, he wasn't always as mean as he was sometimes.

Complimentary Comment.

Senator—I am tremendously happy. This is a classy article I wrote. I am proud of myself.

Acridity—You ought to be. You have discovered the one person in the world who takes you seriously.

PLEA FOR AN "ONION WEEK"

Tribute to Odoriferous but Modest Vegetable Is Advocated by Magazine Writer.

It has been quite popular to have one week set apart for certain special observations and practices. We have had prune week, peanut week, orange week, apple week and other similar gala periods. We often have wondered why we have not been favored with onion week, during which we could as a nation give ourselves over to a more thoughtful and sympathetic study of this modest member of the vegetable family than her quiet demeanor and shrinking personality have won for her in the past, says Thrift.

The onion should be encouraged. Its more general use would go far toward eliminating the dangers that come from the congestion of great crowds in street cars, at railway stations, in the subway and elevated trains and at political meetings. People who eat freely of the onion find that they are less apt to be crushed in traffic jams or trampled upon while trying to find their way out of public gatherings.

The apples have adopted as their motto for life the following pleasing epigram: "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." But at a recent convention held by the onions the following slogan was unanimously accepted: "An onion a day keeps 'em all away."

The onion has many culinary advantages. It can be fried, broiled, stewed or baked. Also it can be eaten alive.

A Close Election.

"You've been in public life a long time. Have you ever thought of retiring?"

"Only on one occasion, sir," said Senator Snortsworthy. "And while I was waiting for my friends to roll up the expected majority I aged fully ten years."

Inconsistent.

Income Tax Facts

NO. 1.

In order that they may take full advantage of the exemptions provided for under the revenue act of 1921, taxpayers are reminded that a single person, if he or she is the head of a family, is allowed the same exemption as a married person—$2,500 if the net income for 1922 was $5,000 or less, and $2,500 if the net income exceeded $5,000.

A head of a family is a person who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals closely related to him by blood, marriage, or adoption and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependents is based upon some moral or legal obligation. Such relative need not be under 18 years of age, nor mentally or physically defective, but must be without income sufficient to support him or her.

Following are concrete examples of the exemptions and credits allowed a head of a family. A son supports in one household an aged mother and two sisters, both under 18 years of age. The son's net income for 1922 was $4,000. He is allowed an exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family whose net income was less than $5,000, plus a $400 credit for each dependent, a total of $3,700. His taxable income is $300, on which the tax of 4 per cent is $12.

A widower with one child under 18 years of age had a net income for 1922 of $3,000. He is entitled to an exemption of $2,500 as head of a family, plus the $400 credit for a dependent.

In the absence of continuous residence with persons whom he supports, whether a person is head of a family within the meaning of the statute depends upon the character of the separation.

If a parent is away on business or a child or other dependent is away at school, the common home being maintained, the exemption applies. But when needlessly and continuously both parties live apart the status of a head of a family does not exist, irrespective of support being given.

"There's no hurry," said the Sapper. "Any old time will do to hop off."

"How you do talk, Augustus! I'll bet you've been reading one of those old-fashioned novels."

Fair Game.

"In the old days when a traveler proclaimed himself a Roman citizen the natives stood back."

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $5.

You might be surprised to know that the best cough syrup you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it, and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly loosens the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"CAP" STUBBS — IT'S AWFUL HARD FOR GRANMA TO DECIDE — By EDWINA

The Joy of Living

by Sidney Gowing

Billy stood up straight and gave a liquid whistle The furrows in his brow deepened He carried his investigations still farther afield, but toward the healthy common the soil was light wind blown sand that shifted with every fresh breeze. There were no tracks left. The seeker was at a loss

Billy stopped and reflected rapidly

"It came this way, whatever it was," he said 'But why on earth did it—and how? Let's start from the beginning"

He struck across country and breaking through a hedge, came out into the blind lane where Jack the Climber's machine had crashed on the fateful night, the spot where he had recovered the emeralds and made acquaintance with Calamity Kate's resourcefulness

The muddy lane still showed slight traces, very much mixed up and trampled, of the place where the thieves' machine had fallen, the ruts were now dried and hard Billy also recognized what were evidently the hoof marks of the Stanhoe police

"A herd of steers wouldn't have made more mess,' said Billy "And Lanke found nothing after all, or he'd have— Well, I can't blow much, either I've been here twice since, but never got wise to it till now

He turned back down the lane toward the highway his eyes noting the smallest details of the ground

Billy Stared Before Him Gloomily

"Here's my track; pretty near washed out And here's the others. That cycle was a big Indian, by what little I saw of it And likely it was half crippled when it got away. And here it got on the high road, and headed straight on past Jervaulx again That's mighty queer I always reckoned they'd have gone the other way Something must have turned them"

He passed along the wider lane in the direction of Jervaulx, his eyes scanning the ground and the ditch A little distance short of the gate through which Billy had wheeled the Sphinx when dodging the police, he stooped quickly and picked up a scrap of metal It was the broken end of an exhaust silencer

"I was right!" ejaculated Billy. 'Here they crashed again—or the engine gave out for good And they came the very way I did myself And one of the two was lame—dead lame One sure thing—they couldn't have got far that night And if they weren't able to ride the thing what did they do with it?

He hurried to the far end of the field where the last of the tracks had failed He hesitated and glanced towards the distant crag pits

"What should I have done myself—if I hadn't known the ground?" he thought "I'll try here first"

Less than a hundred yards to the right was a clump of brushwood growing alone, a little oasis on the bare field

The bushes masked a narrow clay pit twenty feet deep, that had been delved in time past to bring up the heavy marl subsoil and spread it over the sandy field It was now complete ly cloaked with brambles Billy pulled them apart and saw something gleaming dimly at the bottom of the pit

It was the buckled frame of a big twin Indian motorcycle

With a whoop of triumph Billy clambered down the steep side of the pit and disappeared through the brambles He remained below some time

When at last he emerged and stood on the brink, Billy's face was rather pale and his eyes troubled

"Great Caesar's ghost!" he said "Who'd have expected this? Now—if I can pick up the other track, I'll have the game in my hands!"

He hurried in the direction of the distant crag pits then suddenly pulled up short and glanced at his wrist watch

'Aimee!' he exclaimed

He had an appointment with Aimee at five, and an urgent one It was already past the hour Billy set off at a run and in ten minutes reached the rendezvous Aimee was there already in a rough serge walking cloak and a Snooks hat trimmed with calico violets In spite of the costume she looked vividly lovely.

"Mr Chauffeur" said Aimee, severely, "I don't know if you think I want to waste my afternoon off like this You're late"

"I'm sorry," panted Billy. "Came as quick as I could"

"What are you looking excited about?" she said, eyeing him suspiciously

"Oh—just seeing you," blurted Billy

"That isn't true. I've never seen you look excited before You've found out something What is it?"

Billy paused

"It's true I have found out something," he said quietly, "but there's more to do, and I haven't quite all the cards in my hands It's the most amazing stunt yet I'll tell you about it the moment I've got it set"

Aimee looked at him wistfully.

"I don't think you ought to have any secrets from your partner," she said "I always tell you everything"

"Give me till tonight," pleaded Billy. "I hate to talk about it now. It's ugly

By tonight we shall have either won or lost—but we'll win! Will you trust me?"

Aimee seated herself on the turf beneath the sweetbriars

"All right then," she said happily "Let's forget our troubles for a bit. Sit down—you look so tall, towering up there, that I can hardly see you—and let me tell my news It's much more interesting than yours Do you know that Alexander has got himself engaged to my dear fat Georgie, and they're idiotically happy?"

"Has he?" cried Billy, dropping beside her 'Good for him! She's a real trump of a girl, that. And the parson's as white as they make them—he's a fine fellow"

'Yes. Georgie will exactly suit him. I shouldn't have, a bit.'

'You!' exclaimed Billy.

'Exactly. Aunt Erythea's idea is that Alexander's marrying me. You're not very bright today, Billy They'll have a funny tangle to straighten out, when the crash comes"

"Gee! They will. We'll have to help them somehow."

"Of course we shall. But I wonder how we'll do it And that's not all—the Vicomte has suddenly become betrothed, as he calls it, to Alexander's sister—Cold Lambe."

'She'll tone him down," said Billy.

"Not a bit. He'll tone her up,' replied Aimee confidently, "and a jolly good thing, too So there they all are I oughtn't to have mentioned it to you, Billy—I know how it depresses you It's horrible—all this sentiment"

Billy stared before him gloomily, and was silent.

"Isn't it!" insisted Aimee.

"Sickening!" said Billy, bitterly.

Aimee glanced at him and, looking away, stirred the grass with the point of his shoe. There was a long pause.

"What was it you were saying about things?" said Aimee

"I told you," replied Billy, "that before tomorrow it will either be a complete crash—or all clear."

Aimee nodded

"I see That means, in the first case, that I'll be exploded—broken—done for—'

"No!" said Billy sharply.

"It does, though But in the second, if things go better—I shall just be back at Scroope, in a sort of mild disgrace—stood in the corner That's nothing much I'm used to it. And there you are! Well, the curtain's soon going to ring down Our partnership—"

Billy turned to her quickly

"Is finished' continued Aimee quietly, looking out across the park 'I shan't be able to ride the Sphinx for you, Billy I'm sorry about that It would have been fun"

Billy caught his breath

'You mean' he said slowly, "that I shan't see you again?"

'I mean that How can you? Our little holiday is over, Billy"

His fingers closed on the turf on either side of him and dug deep.

I understand It's up to me. Tomorrow—we don't even know each other '

He let go the turf, and caught her hands

"Aimee!"

"Billy!"

Before either of them knew how it happened, he had her in his arms

I can't let you go!" said Billy wildly. 'You're the darling of the world The loveliest, brightest thing that ever breathed Aimee—do you think—you could try and love me?"

"Love you?" said Aimee, trembling "Who could help loving you, Billy!"

He held her tight and kissed her

"I was so frightened—" said Aimee, in a stifled voice

Frightened—" He held her tighter

'That you'd be frightened—"

'Me!"

"—of being sentimental' panted Aimee

Billy felt stunned

'If you knew what I've been through' he said a little hoarsely 'this past week—trying not to let you see it '

He kissed her again—more than once Then he sat back his head in a whirl There was the longest pause yet a silence that seemed interminable

They were recalled to earth by a staccato noise

'Yap! Yap' Yap' Yap! Yipe-yipe!"

Aimee and Billy started violently! A small white Highland terrier with its four legs braced was barking at them [illegible] but not wholly with disapproval"

Aimee felt stricken as though by a sudden paralysis Behind the terrier stood Lady Erythea erect and rigid. The glare in her eyes was the glare of a destroying Gorgon.

CHAPTER XXII

Not Guilty.

The guilty pair arose to their feet Aimee, from rosy red, had turned extremely pale There was every excuse for it. Lady Erythea's expression was enough to unnerve the stoutest heart.

"And this" in a voice like the clashing of a motor's gear box, "in the face of my express warning! You are discharged" She took a step towards Aimee "And as for you—"

Billy interposed his large figure between them.

"Madam,' he said, "if you have any comments to make, please make them to me Or, better still—do not make them at all '

His voice was quiet and respectful But his chin was lifted remarkably high and his lips compressed dangerously

Lady Erythea struggled for breath

"Are you presuming" she said, in a strangled voice to dictate to me!

Mr William Spencer bowed.

"I hope—my lady—that it will not be necessary What I do presume is to defend Miss—Snooks—against any reproaches whatever. This is her afternoon off

Aimee looked at them both—especially at Lady Erythea. And for once the 'sand,' on which she had so often been complimented, deserted her. Aimee turned suddenly and fled

The terrier, under the impression that it was all an extremely interesting game got up for his amusement, pursued her out of sight round the bushes giving tongue excitedly

Billy kept his eyes fixed on the intruder.

"If you require an explanation, Lady Erythea," he said quietly, 'I guess I can give you one very briefly. I have just asked Miss Snooks to marry me.'

Lady Erythea was mentally staggered "You have asked her—to marry you?' she said, staring at Billy

"And she has done me the great honor to consent."

Billy's grim expression relaxed into a very charming smile

"I feel sure your ladyship will not throw any obstacles in the way of this humble romance," he said gently, "We shall be very happy to have our employer's approval

His employer gazed at him dumbly The announcement came as a shock And it was difficult even for Lady Erythea to resist Billy's smile. As well attempt to resist a sunbeam She melted imperceptibly Her faculties were bemused Billy despite the smile, looked so extraordinarily dignified that Lady Erythea almost felt an impulse to apologize to her chauffeur

PATRONIZE THOSE WHO ADVERTISE!

Gain In Output Continues From Week to Week; Total Advanced to 245,690 Tons

If January Average Is Maintained, Year's Tonnage Will Be 12,000,000.

STEADY RUNNING DESIRED

Rather Than Making New Records; Progress Thus Far in New Year Is Encouraging; 506 More Ovens Fired Up; Car Supply Still Big Factor.

From The Weekly Courier.

The increase in the production of coke continued last week and at a higher rate than during either of the two weeks immediately preceding. The gain was 11,010 tons, as compared with 8,320 tons during the week ended January 20 and 6,510 during the week ended January 13. The total gain for the first four weeks of the year has been 53,280 tons, advancing the weekly output to 245,690 tons.

This gain becomes more significant of the improved conditions in the coke trade when the aggregate production of the first four weeks of January is compared with the corresponding period of 1922. A year ago the total had reached but 516,960 tons, or an average of 86,735 tons per week. Up to and including last Saturday the total for this year was 924,580 tons, or an average of 231,145 tons per week. The gain of 577,640 tons for the four weeks of 1923, over 1922, is 166 per cent. If the average weekly rate of output is maintained throughout the remainder of the year the total will be in excess of 12,000,000 tons, or more than twice that of 1922 and greater than any year since 1916 when the regional aggregate was 16,138,590 tons.

The operators are not greatly concerned, however, in making new records. They are anxious to maintain a fairly steady rate of operation and at prices that will make it possible to realize a profit over and above the costs of production which were very materially advanced by the expenses incident to the strike, and the persistently high prices for everything that enters into the cost of mining coal and making it into coke.

From this point of view there is encouragement of a substantial character in the progress made thus far in the new year. Each succeeding week has recorded increases in demand to which response has been made by firing up more plants and ovens. This steady expansion of producing facilities has gone along from week to week and without, as has frequently happened in the history of the trade, causing a reaction in prices. True, the appeal from the anthracite coal consuming sections for relief from shortage in supply has been a price sustaining factor and a stimulus to larger production, but aside from this feature there have been developments tending to insure greater stability in the trade and at the same time cause it to grow in volume.

The enlargements in production totals from week have been the immediate result of firing up more ovens, although recurring periods of better car supply have helped very decidedly. Improvement of this kind has not always been general throughout the region, the experience having been that when one or more of the railroads serving it have had a fair supply of cars for distribution, the other lines were less fortunate. Sometimes it has happened that one road would have close to 90 per cent supply and others 70, 60 or even lower. Last week both the Pennsylvania and the Monongahela roads, which serve the bulk of the plants in both districts of the region, averaged 80 per cent. The Baltimore & Ohio and Lake Erie had very much less while the restriction imposed by the former of prohibiting its coke cars going off its own lines, placed some plants at a disadvantage in the matter of finding destinations within the requirements of this order. It is noteworthy, in connection with the car supply question, to know that last week the movement of loads, coal, coke and general merchandise, averaged 1,800 cars a day over the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania railroad. This is much the best record for more than a year.

The outlook for the present week is regarded as fairly good both with respect to demand for coke and conditions in general. The region has a plentiful supply of men and is in a position to turn out still more coke if the railroads could perform the apparently impossible feat of maintaining a 100 per cent car supply.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, January 17, was 245,690 tons, divided between the two districts in the following proportions: Connellsville, 140,540, an increase of 7,220 tons; Lower Connellsville, 105,150, an increase of 3,790 tons, or a total increase of 11,010 tons, as compared with an increase of 8,320 tons during the preceding week. Shipments exceeded production by upwards of 2,000 tons which were loaded out from the stock piles.

By interests the production was Furnace, 143,690, a gain of 8,500 tons; merchant, 102,000, a gain of 2,510 tons, as compared with gains of 1,510 and 6,810 tons respectively during the week ended January 20.

Of the 506 additional ovens fired up 154 were at furnace and 352 at merchant plants. The former were all at plants of the H. C. Frick Coke Company as follows:

Leisenring No. 1, 16; Leith, 10; Trotter, 10; Buffington, 20; Colonial No. 4, eight; Dearth, 10; Footedale 30.

Merchant additions were: Elm Grove, three; Paul, 25; Revere, 10; Oliver No. 1 four, Oliver No. 3 11; Oliver No. 3, five; Century, 12; Griffin No. 1, 51; Scarlight, 15; Shamrock, 55; Thompson No. 2, 10; Tower Hill No. 1, 26; Washington No. 1, 60.

Production by the two interests and the total compared with the corresponding week in 1922 is shown herewith:

Week	Merch.	Furn	Total.	Total 1922
Jan 6.	81 880	132,970	217,850	81,170

Jan 27	102,000	143,690	245 690	90,350

1923 to Date 924,580
1922 to Date 346,940

REALLY WAS PIRATE CHANTY

"Fifteen Men On the Dead Man's Chest" Did Not Come From the Fertile Brain of Stevenson.

It will be news to most persons that part at least of the sea-song in "Treasure Is and" is authentic, and certainly was sung by the pirates and buccaneers in the Caribbean in the late Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries.

Dead Man's Chest is an island in the Virgins which has now lost its identity in the new name "Dead Chest Island." Here the pirates were in the habit of repairing to careen their ships and stretch their legs, and naturally it was an ideal occasion for songs which would have strong piratical and local flavor.

Curiously enough, there is a little church on the Chilian coast which is obviously built of ship timbers, and recently an enthusiast waiting for a coasting steamer bethought him that if the building came from a ship the bell probably did as well. A climb among the rafters did not reveal the name of the ship, as he hoped, but, sure enough, round the edge of the bell were the words, "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest." All that the priest could tell him was that the church, bell came from a ship that was wrecked in 1732, which was just the time that the West Indies were getting rather hot for the pirates, and many were being driven into the Pacific.

It is an interesting sidelight on the strange nooks and corners from which Stevenson ("R. L. S.") collected the material for his books.

MOTHER AND SON ARE RESTORED IN THE SAME WAY

Tanlac Treatment Gave Both Relief From All Their Digestive Troubles, Declares Mrs. Rider.

"Both my son and myself think there is nothing like Tanlac," declared Mrs. Henriette Rider, 208 Arch St., Mechanicsburg, Pa., "for since taking the medicine we enjoy splendid health.

"For two years I suffered so badly from stomach trouble that at times I could not relish a bite I ate. Then again my food seemed to stay in my stomach without digesting. I didn't dare eat meat, for I would be in misery from the pains. I had so much trouble with gas on my stomach that at night I often had to prop myself up with pillows, and scarcely slept a wink. I was thin and run-down, with my strength gradually slipping away.

"My son had been so run-down he could not work but Tanlac completely overcame his troubles, and he got me to try the medicine. My digestion is now perfect, I eat meat or anything else, sleep soundly and am also gaining in weight. I consider Tanlac the one sure stomach medicine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35-million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

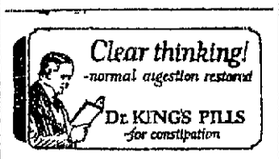

Counterfeit Currency.

The distinguishing characteristic between real and counterfeit paper money is in the quality of the paper used. Every bank in the country has its own special paper, and each bank has its secret distinguishing mark on every bill issued. It is very difficult for the counterfeiters to obtain exactly the same kind of paper—of the same texture and thinness—and more difficult still to incorporate in it the secret mark, and, although they may issue notes of a similarity that will deceive the public, these notes very seldom pass the scrutiny of the experienced bank official. There are other characteristics in the counterfeit note, such as bad printing and coloring and awkwardness in the insertion of new figures when the notes are raised, but these are more easily detected, as are also clumsiness in the execution of the forged signatures.

Not So Helpful.

"I beg your pardon. Could you tell me how far it is to the post office?"

"Bless my soul!" exclaimed Professor Diggs. "I can't tell you, sir. But," he continued brightening considerably, "if you are interested in knowing, I can tell you exactly how far it is to Sirius, the dog star."

You Don't Need a Wringer With This Washing Machine!

IT'S the Laun-DRY-ette Washer — to be found in Connellsville exclusively at Wright's. It marks the greatest advance in washing methods since the introduction of electric power. For it not only washes the clothes thoroughly, but whirls them dry for the line in one minute. Which means that the work of wringing the clothes is no longer necessary.

The Laun-Dry-Ette washer does not smash buttons or tear them off. It does not injure patent fasteners or hooks. It can't—for it has no wringer.

The Laun-Dry-Ette dries the clothes by centrifugal force. Pressure on a petal raises the dryer above the water, and the turn of a switch starts the dryer revolving so that in one minute the whole tubful of clothes is wringer-dry and ready for the line.

Store Downstairs.

With the Laun-Dry-Ette Washer, there is never any need to handle wet clothes. You handly only moist clothes, regardless of whether you are washing, ringing or bluing. This means that you can keep your hands soft and white.

The Laun-Dry-Ette requires no extra tubs. Washing, rinsing, bluing are done right in the machine. It is the one electric washer that does all the work.

We will be glad to demonstrate it any day. $155.
